Global ageing is one of the most significant societal challenges that we face in the current times. As countries around the world move towards achieving the Sustainable Development Goals, there is much evidence that emerges on the range of inequalities that reduce the wellbeing of older adults. In this conference we encourage researchers to push the boundaries of ageing research by exploring new conceptualizations of ageing research with innovative theories, datasets, analysis techniques and ways of sharing scientific knowledge. Through the interrelated sub-themes of work, care and mobility we hope to stimulate active discussions on new pathways to ageing research.
